

In 1534 a cache of gold was hidden in a small huaca (cave) in the side of Cerro Mandango (Vilacamba, South Equador). Over the centuries the precise location of the huaca was lost, however, at Easter, during Semana Santa, the entrance of the cave opens to one of true heart. Unfortunately there are three guardians of the gold- an old, cantankerous man, a dog and a rooster- but by placing a cigarillo, a bone and a kernel of corn at the opening one can distract all three and obtain the gold.
No one has yet to do it.
