The Israeli Embassy have requested that the name of Shalom Park in Cork's historic Jewish district should be renamed Jerusalem Park. Jerusalem is celebrating the 3000th anniversary of its foundation as the capital of Israel by King David, and the Israelis have asked cities around the world to mark the event by naming something after the city.

"We asked several cities and towns in Ireland to call a park, street or plaza in the name of Jerusalem for the anniversary" said Embassy spokesman Gerfhon Kedar. Cork based Gerald Goldberg, a former Lord Mayor of the city, acted as intermediary for the Israeli Embassy in their efforts to get some place in Cork named after Jerusalem.
